

DIEGO PÉREZ GROVAS

diego@romopg.com

Diego brings over 20 years of experience in corporate, real estate, finance, and M&A law. He has advised both Mexican and international investors, working as outside counsel and as in-house general counsel — an experience that gives him a firsthand understanding of the client's perspective and a natural instinct for practical, business-driven solutions.

Before co-founding Romo & Pérez Grovas, Diego served as General Counsel at Meor, a private equity real estate fund, and as General Counsel and Wealth Manager for the family office of a prominent business family. His career began in the private banking legal department at Banamex, and he spent eight years at Romo Paillés, a boutique firm specializing in corporate and transactional law, where he rose to Senior Associate.

Experience

Diego's experience includes:

- Structuring and leading the acquisition, sale, and development of commercial, industrial, residential, hospitality, and mixed-use properties, including the design and implementation of investment vehicles.
- Structuring, negotiating, and managing financing for the acquisition, development, and operation of real estate projects, including the negotiation of collateral packages.
- Advising Mexican and foreign investors on the acquisition and disposition of assets and equity interests in Mexican companies across the financial services, real estate, transportation, food and beverage, media, and construction sectors.
- Negotiating and implementing joint ventures among different groups for the development, operation, and management of real estate projects and companies across various industries.
- Advising one of Mexico's leading operators in the extended-stay and short-term lodging sector on the operational and contractual structuring of its business.
- Leading corporate restructurings, including the reorganization of asset-holding and investment structures in Mexico and the United States.
- Advising on corporate law, governance, and transactional matters, with a focus on new business structuring and the negotiation of shareholders' agreements.
- Providing ongoing legal and wealth management counsel to business owners on the administration and protection of their personal and corporate assets.
